

AROUND CABARRUS

Learn more about biotechnology

The Cabarrus County Extension and Community Association will host a public meeting on biotechnology from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sept. 25 at the Kannapolis train station, 201 S. Main St., Kannapolis.

Ed Otto, dean of biotechnology at Rowan-Cabarrus Community College, will present "It's A Biotechnology World." People will learn about employment, educational and cultural opportunities that will be available when the North Carolina Research Campus opens in Kannapolis.

Light refreshments and door prizes will be available. Details: 704-920-3310.
